

Fujitsu uSCALE for Workplace

When do you start to let go?

The pandemic and the new style of work have permanently changed the workplace. Numerous companies were required to react quickly and flexibly to new regulations and requirements overnight. Often, however, the existing IT concept and budget did not support this. Usually, the existing IT equipment is bound to fixed workplaces and there is no comprehensive mobile equipment available. This is where Fujitsu's new uSCALE for Workplace offering can help.

Do what you do best. And let go of what you can let go.

What is uSCALE for Workplace?

Fujitsu uSCALE for Workplace offers all you need, hardware, software and services on a monthly subscription model. This enables large and small companies to avoid the large investment in up-to-date IT equipment that is required every four to five years. The costs associated with this, such as peripheral expenditures for procurement, deployment, training, support, recovery, and asset management are spread over a longer period. With this offering we enable customers to pay for what they want, for as long as they need and eliminate unnecessary waste.

Adapt your workplace to this new hybrid world, free yourself from the burden of managing deployments across your business and ensure an optimal work-life shift for your employees.
